COMMENT OF
THE DAY

UN & Red China

WHAT 75 per cent of the General Assembly on Tuesday voted against the replacement of Nationalist China by the Central Government of the People's Republic of China, and another ten per cent abstained from committing themselves, must be accepted as a decisive expression of sentiment against immediate admission of the Peking regime into the world family of nations.

The reasons motivating this decision are familiar enough. The principal one is that the majority of the Western democracies feel that Communist China, neither by words nor deeds, has qualified for United Nations membership. Additionally, a considerable number of countries who help form the United Nations have not yet individually recognised the Peking government; whereas Communist China's presence in the General Assembly and other organs of UN would be highly embarrassing to them.

THE Peking government has very much itself to blame for the continued boycott of the United Nations. Deliberately it antagonised world opinion by a needless intrusion into the Korean conflict. Its anti-West propaganda for a long time has been vicious; its treatment of many foreigners in China degrading and obnoxious. Instead of trying to win the respect of the world, as would be expected of a new government in charge of a great and important nation, the Chinese Communist leaders embarked on an anti-foreign programme which aroused both disgust and mistrust.

The world has still to satisfy itself that Communist China will not only subscribe to the principles and charter of the United Nations, but will be prepared to apply them in practice. There have been a few hesitant goodwill signs of recent months, and they are welcomed in the hope that the Peking regime is seriously desirous of proving itself to be a responsible and trustworthy government. But there remains a lot of ground to be recovered.

It is accepted among the Western democracies that the key to wider recognition of the Peking government is the composing of differences between the United States and Communist China. It is equally realised this cannot be quickly accomplished. The respective roles which each country has adopted in the Western Pacific creates a formidable obstacle. Yet a rapprochement of a limited nature clearly is feasible, and in truth essential, if there is to be effected any genuine settlement of the political problems of the Orient.

THE measure of Sino-American compromise would also serve as a pointer to the possibility of Communist China gaining admission to the United Nations next year. Despite Tuesday's heavy vote in the General Assembly there are indications that UN members generally are beginning to feel that Communist China must in due time be admitted. The Bandung conference's proposition for applying the principle of universal membership has gained supporters outside the Afro-Asian group, and if the principle is adopted in the United Nations, it will be increasingly difficult to deny Communist China membership.

The Peking government could easily hasten that day by actions that will convince the rest of the world it desires and intends to be an honourable member of the United Nations.

Invitation
From An Aunt

Stockholm, Sept. 21. A Finnish woman, who considers herself the aunt of deposed Argentine President Juan Peron, today invited her "nephew" to live with her in her Aland Islands home—in the Baltic Sea, midway between Sweden and Finland.

Mrs Elsa Soederlund said: "Now that he is in difficulty, Juan Peron would be welcome at our home, if he wanted to take refuge with us."

Mr Soederlund was born a Peron. His brother Carl Bruno Peron emigrated to North America in 1880. The Soederlund family believes that Carl Bruno Peron later married a Latin American woman and went to live in the Argentine and that Juan Peron is the son of this couple.—France-Presse.

HITLER'S
HENCHMEN
SET FREE

Moscow, Sept. 21. The Soviet Government may be willing to release some—or all—of the six top Nazis still held in Berlin's Spandau prison, diplomatic sources said today.

These sources said the Kremlin is understood to be considering a favourable reply should the Big Three Western powers—the United States, Britain and France—press again for their release.

Top-ranking Nazis like former Luftwaffe chief Hermann Goering, Gestapo boss Heinrich Himmler and Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop were sentenced to death by the Allied War Crimes Commission at Nuremberg in 1945.

Goering and Himmler swallowed cyanide pills; von Ribbentrop was hanged. But seven Nazi leaders were sentenced to varying terms of imprisonment in grim Spandau. Baron Konstantin von Neurath, now 82, sick and half blind, was released last year.

THOSE REMAINING

The remaining six are: Rudolf Hess, 61, Hitler's former deputy Führer who parachuted into Britain during World War II with a mad peace offer, sentenced to life.

Albert Speer, Hitler's master munitions maker, 20 years' imprisonment.

Baldur von Schirach, 47, the Hitler Youth leader, 20 years.

Walther Funk, 64, Nazi Economics Minister, life imprisonment.

Admiral Karl Doenitz, 63, who took over as Führer when Hitler committed suicide, 10 years.

Admiral Erich Raeder, 79, Grand Admiral of the Nazi U-Boat fleet, life imprisonment.—United Press.

ORDERS STILL IN FORCE

Cairo, Sept. 21. Egyptian Premier Colonel Gamal Abdel Nasser, today conferred with members of the Revolutionary Council on the new incidents which have occurred in the Palestine border.

A special meeting of the Revolutionary Council was scheduled for this evening. The Premier told journalists today that "the orders given yesterday to Egyptian troops to remain at least 500 metres from the demarcation line are still in force."—France-Presse.

HURRICANE

Mexico City, Sept. 21. Hurricane Hilda's death toll reached 144 today, official Mexican sources reported.

Of the total, 105 persons were killed in and near Tampico; 17 in San Luis Potosi; 11 in Villa Chicon; 6 in Lobos Islands; 5 in Ciudad Victoria.

PERON SAFE ON WARSHIP

Suffers "Mental Strain And Spiritual Depression"

REBELS LIFT BLOCKADE Demonstration In Sante Fe

Rio de Janeiro, Sept. 21. Ex-President Peron of Argentina is still aboard a Paraguayan gunboat in Buenos Aires harbour, the Paraguayan Ambassador there, Senor Juan Chaves, said today in a telephone interview with the Rio newspaper O Globo.

The Ambassador said he personally escorted Peron aboard the gunboat Paraguay after the ex-President had telephoned him asking for asylum and transport to Asuncion.

Senor Chaves, according to the newspaper, added he obtained a safe conduct pass to the ship and was negotiating with the Argentine Foreign Ministry for its departure when the rebels took over the government.

He added that the gunboat was now awaiting clearance.

The Ambassador said the rebel authorities had treated him with the maximum consideration and had not indicated they intended to detain Peron or impede his departure.

Senor Chaves said in the interview Peron's health was good but he was showing signs of "mental strain and spiritual depression."

The blockade of Buenos Aires and all Argentine ports was lifted today. The blockade had been imposed by rebel forces last Sunday.

General Eduardo Lonardi, President of the Provisional Government, will arrive in Buenos Aires tomorrow at 11 a.m. local time. He will fly from Cordoba and be met by the members of the military Junta which took over power in Buenos Aires from President Peron.

The Commander of the Argentine Fleet, Rear-Admiral Isidro Rojas, today sent a congratulatory telegram to General Eduardo Lonardi, new President of the Provisional Government.

Rojas' telegram also expressed his best wishes for Lonardi's success in the difficult task ahead.

The Rear-Admiral hoped that "true justice and democracy will reign forever in our beloved country for the well-being and the glory of the fatherland."

POLITICAL PRISONERS FREED

All political prisoners were freed today.

Senor Hugo Dipietro, Secretary-General of the General Confederation of Labour, ordered workers in a broadcast to accept the benefit of peace and continue to work.

As Senor Dipietro addressed workers today, reports reached Buenos Aires of a clash in Santa Fe city between anti-Peron demonstrators and a group of Peronista railwaymen.

Demonstrators cleared the city of busts of Peron and Evita, dragging the statues with ropes along the streets.

When they reached the railway station, they were greeted with a shower of bullets. One demonstrator was reported wounded. Calm was later restored.

The cry of "liberty" was heard everywhere in Buenos Aires. People played the Marcellise and the national anthem on their radiograms.

At the Palace of Justice, judges, lawyers and officials pulled down portraits of Peron and the late Eva Peron and burned them publicly.

Apart from the debris of the National Alliance headquarters, Buenos Aires paid only a small bill.

HURRICANE DEATH TOLL REACHES 144

Two additional deaths were in other areas. Pilots who flew over the area said.

The only communication between Ciudad Valles, virtually destroyed by floods of the Totonac and Santa Maria rivers, nearly 10,000 Ciudad Valles residents were left homeless.

24 Killed In Buenos Aires Tank Attack

Buenos Aires, Sept. 22.

A gendarmerie announcement tonight said 24 people were so far known to have been killed in the tank attack against the headquarters of the National Alliance. The debris is still being searched for other victims.

Most of the Alliance members surrendered before the attack began, the announcement said.

Rumours of sabotage prompted the Department of Public Works to issue an announcement reassuring the population that it is "absolutely untrue" that the water supply is poisoned.

In Buenos Aires, it was clear that General Audelino, Director of Security in the capital, intends to have the town in order for tomorrow's take-over ceremony.

To prevent hard Peronists groups from entering the city from outlying districts, drawbridges across the canal which leads to the docks were lifted. Elsewhere along the border of the federal district, strong cordons of soldiers with armoured cars and gas and electricity installations.

Motorised units patrolled

the main streets.

At the headquarters of the union of electricity and power workers, where the committee seemed ready to resist, two tanks were stationed late tonight and the inmates were warned by loudspeakers: "There will be no 48-hour ultimatum this time, like we did with the Nationalists."—Reuter.

BURGESS, MACLEAN FURORE

Govt To Refuse Public Inquiry

London, Sept. 22.

The British Government will refuse a public inquiry into the disappearance of the diplomats Guy Burgess and Donald Maclean, the Daily Mail reported today.

The newspaper asserts in a front-page story that Sir Anthony Eden's Conservative Cabinet decided yesterday to make their refusal of an inquiry carried out privately and reported to Parliament at the Cabinet's discretion.

Any other form of inquiry, the newspaper said, would involve exposure of British secret service methods.

Burgess and Maclean disappeared in May 1951 from their Foreign Office posts and are now presumed to be in Russia.

The Foreign Office, after four years' silence, has now admitted that they were suspected of being Communist agents at the time they left Britain, but sufficient evidence against them was not available.—China Mail Special.

White Paper

London, Sept. 21.

Sir Anthony Eden today called a second meeting of his Cabinet for tomorrow immediately after he and his ministers had spent more than two hours discussing the storm caused by new Burgess and Maclean espionage disclosures.

The British government has implicitly and tacitly accepted all our proposals but one, and that is representation at Westminster.

This will aim at heading off a further row when the House of Commons reassembles late next month after its summer vacation.

The document is expected to be published on Friday.

No Comment

The Foreign Office spokesman today declined to comment on a front-page report in the mass-circulation Daily Express denouncing that "a third man" who tipped off Maclean and Burgess that they had already accepted much of his integration plan.

Many politicians are worried that Maltese Members might hold the balance of power in a closely-divided Parliament and it was considered unlikely Mr Mintoff's full proposal stood much chance of acceptance.

"While they were giving him a sympathetic hearing, they said, nothing had been accepted and nor would it until at least after Parliament reassembles next month.

Many politicians are worried that the changes were not to take place overnight but be produced gradually and in such a way they ought not to hinder the economy of Malta or put an excessive burden on the British taxpayer."

Mr Mintoff won election earlier this year on a "union" plank. He promised to fight for social services on an absolutely equal basis with Britain, extension of British central economic planning to the island and political representation.

"We want to feel we are British and on an equal footing with the English," said Mr Mintoff. "Unless the Maltese people feel equal the whole plan of co-operation with the British government would fail."

The conference continues tomorrow.—United Press.

STRAIGHT
KRUSHCHEV

Accuses Japanese

Moscow, Sept. 21. Soviet Communist Party chief Nikita Krushchev accused the Japanese today of "intentionally prolonging" the London talks on normalisation of relations.

He indicated that the problem of Japanese prisoners of war held in the Soviet Union could be solved easily if diplomatic relations were established between the two countries.

Krushchev spoke at a meeting in the Kremlin this afternoon with the Japanese parliamentary delegation currently visiting the Soviet Union.

Although Krushchev did not of the talking, Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin also was present and gave full support to what Krushchev said.

WHAT HE SAID

After hearing an appeal by the delegation for release of Japanese war prisoners, Krushchev declared:

"I want to cite the example of the German war criminals. The Soviet Government had held discussions with West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

"Nevertheless, in only five days, our two countries succeeded in solving this problem, by restoring diplomatic relations.

"In contrast, the Japanese in London have been discussing and negotiating for five whole months and I am under the impression that the Japanese Government is intentionally prolonging the talks."

PERMITTED TO QUOTE

The details of the Kremlin talks were revealed this evening at a meeting by Morito Morishita, leading Socialist member of the Japanese parliament.

He gave permission to be quoted in full, saying, "I take full responsibility for my remarks."

The Japanese parliamentary delegation was notified at the Kremlin with Bulganin's message to President Eisenhower. But they said that Bulganin told the President he planned to send copies to Sir Anthony Eden, expressing "disappointment" over the slow progress of those talks.

Informants here refused to disclose the subject of Marshal Bulganin's message to President Eisenhower. But they said that Bulganin told the President he planned to send copies to Sir Anthony Eden, expressing "disappointment" over the slow progress of those talks.

Washington, Sept. 21.

The State Department announced today that the United States, moving towards its most important tariff-cutting negotiations since 1947, was considering duty reductions on about 900 import items which last year earned $1,772,000,000 in the United States for foreign countries.

The negotiations, to begin next January, probably in Geneva, with 25 countries, will be carried under the authority of the new Trade Agreements Extension Act which authorised President Eisenhower to cut tariffs on selected items by five per cent in each of the next three years.

The announcement said that any reductions negotiated would be applied. — Reuter.

Men Called To Strike

Paris, Sept. 21.

French railway locomotive engineers were today called out for a 24-hour "warning strike" starting tomorrow at 1700 hours (local time).

The strike call was issued by the Autonomous General Federation of Railway Engineers to which most French footplate men belong.

The Autonomous Union instructed its members actually driving trains at the deadline of 1700 hours to take their train to the nearest terminus or junction.

The Union's headquarters said in a statement the strike was being called following unsatisfactory wage offers. — France Presse.

Matsumoto
Off Home
Looks Hopeful
That Russia
Will Release
More Prisoners

London, Sept. 21.
Japanese delegation leader Shunichi Matsumoto completed preparations for his return to Tokyo today with expectations that Russia might release some more Japanese war prisoners shortly.

Soviet Embassy Charge d'Affaires Nikolai Belokhvostikov, acting Soviet delegation leader, visited Mr Matsumoto today to discuss how Russo-Japanese contacts should be maintained during Mr Matsumoto's absence in Tokyo, officials said.

They said the two diplomats considered the possibility of a joint communiqué setting out the motives for Mr Matsumoto's departure for consultations in Tokyo, but they postponed any action until after the Soviet Charge had consulted Moscow.

The prisoner issue was not formally discussed, but Mr Matsumoto appeared hopeful that some more Japanese detainees would be released by the Soviets while he is in Japan.

He is leaving here tomorrow (at 11.25 GMT) for Bonn, and is expected to reach Tokyo on September 30.

BEEN RECALLED

Mr Matsumoto informed the Soviet Ambassador to London, and leader of the Soviet delegation in the Russo-Japanese peace talks, Mr Jacob Malik, before the latter left London for the United Nations General Assembly in New York, that he had been recalled for consultations with his government, and that he would be available for further discussions when Mr Malik returns to London.

The talks have been suspended during the absence of the delegations' heads, but Mr Matsumoto made it clear to Mr Malik that his trip to Japan was in no way intended to delay the talks. On the contrary, it was designed to further them.

During his absence, the Japanese delegation will be led by Embassy Counsellor Michio Tokashiki.

Although no details were disclosed about today's talks between the two diplomats, the plan was that the delegations should consult with each other whenever the necessity should arise. It was expected that they might discuss problems concerning the prisoners issue.

Russia has not yet given her views of the Japanese draft peace treaty, and it was considered unlikely that a reply would be given in Mr. Malik's absence. — United Press.

Interpreter Held

Korean Employed
By UN To Face
Espionage Trial

Seoul, Sept. 21.
A Korean interpreter employed by the United Nations side of the Korean Armistice Commission has been arrested in an espionage investigation, the Seoul Metropolitan Police Board said today.

A Republic of Korea national police spokesman said the interpreter, Kim Sam Yul, 47, is being held for trial on suspicion of being a Communist spy.

A spokesman for the UN command at Munsan, the UN armistice base camp, confirmed that Kim was "taken away" by ROK military authorities.

But the UN spokesman said that Kim did not handle classified material and added, "We knew nothing derogatory about him."

The UN spokesman at Munsan and an 8th Army spokesman in Seoul refused to comment on Korean police allegations that the interpreter was a spy.

SINCE JAN. 1954
Kim worked as both an interpreter and translator for the UN armistice team from January, 1954 until last August 20, the day he was arrested.

The UN spokesman said Kim sometimes interpreted for US Maj.-Gen. Harlan C. Parks, senior UN adviser of the Armistice Commission, who meets with the Communists of Panmunjom.

The Korean police spokesman said that Kim and eight other recently arrested Koreans "actively collaborated with the Communists during the war in 1950" and were "Communist espionage agents."

But the Korean police did not make it clear if they were charging that Kim conducted espionage activities while employed by the UN military command.

Police said the suspect was a Communist Party member.

Nutting's Bitter Attack On Subversion In Cyprus UNITED NATIONS DEBATE

United Nations, Sept. 21.

Britain told the United Nations today that the Cyprus question should be solved by direct diplomatic contacts and negotiation and warned that UN intervention at Greece's request would endanger stability in the Mediterranean.

The British delegate, Mr Anthony Nutting, spoke before the 15-member steering committee to oppose inscription on the agenda of the 10th General Assembly Greece's demand for United Nations action to enforce the principle of self-determination for the people of Cyprus.

Britain, he said, "deeply regrets" Greece's decision to raise the Cyprus issue again. "We shall do everything we can to prevent the Greek Government's action from injuring our friendship with Greece," he said. "We have no wish to quarrel with an old friend."

Mr Nutting said the London tripartite conference on Cyprus had been taken to ensure that military authorities and civil police co-operated closely in future.

An official statement said investigations were made into the circumstances and arrangements made for dealing with last Saturday's rioting during which the British Institute in Nicosia was burned down. An Army spokesman has declared that Army officers had offered help several times but police refused it. He added that plans for the close co-operation of Army and police authorities would in future be implemented "with the least possible risk of failure."—Reuter.

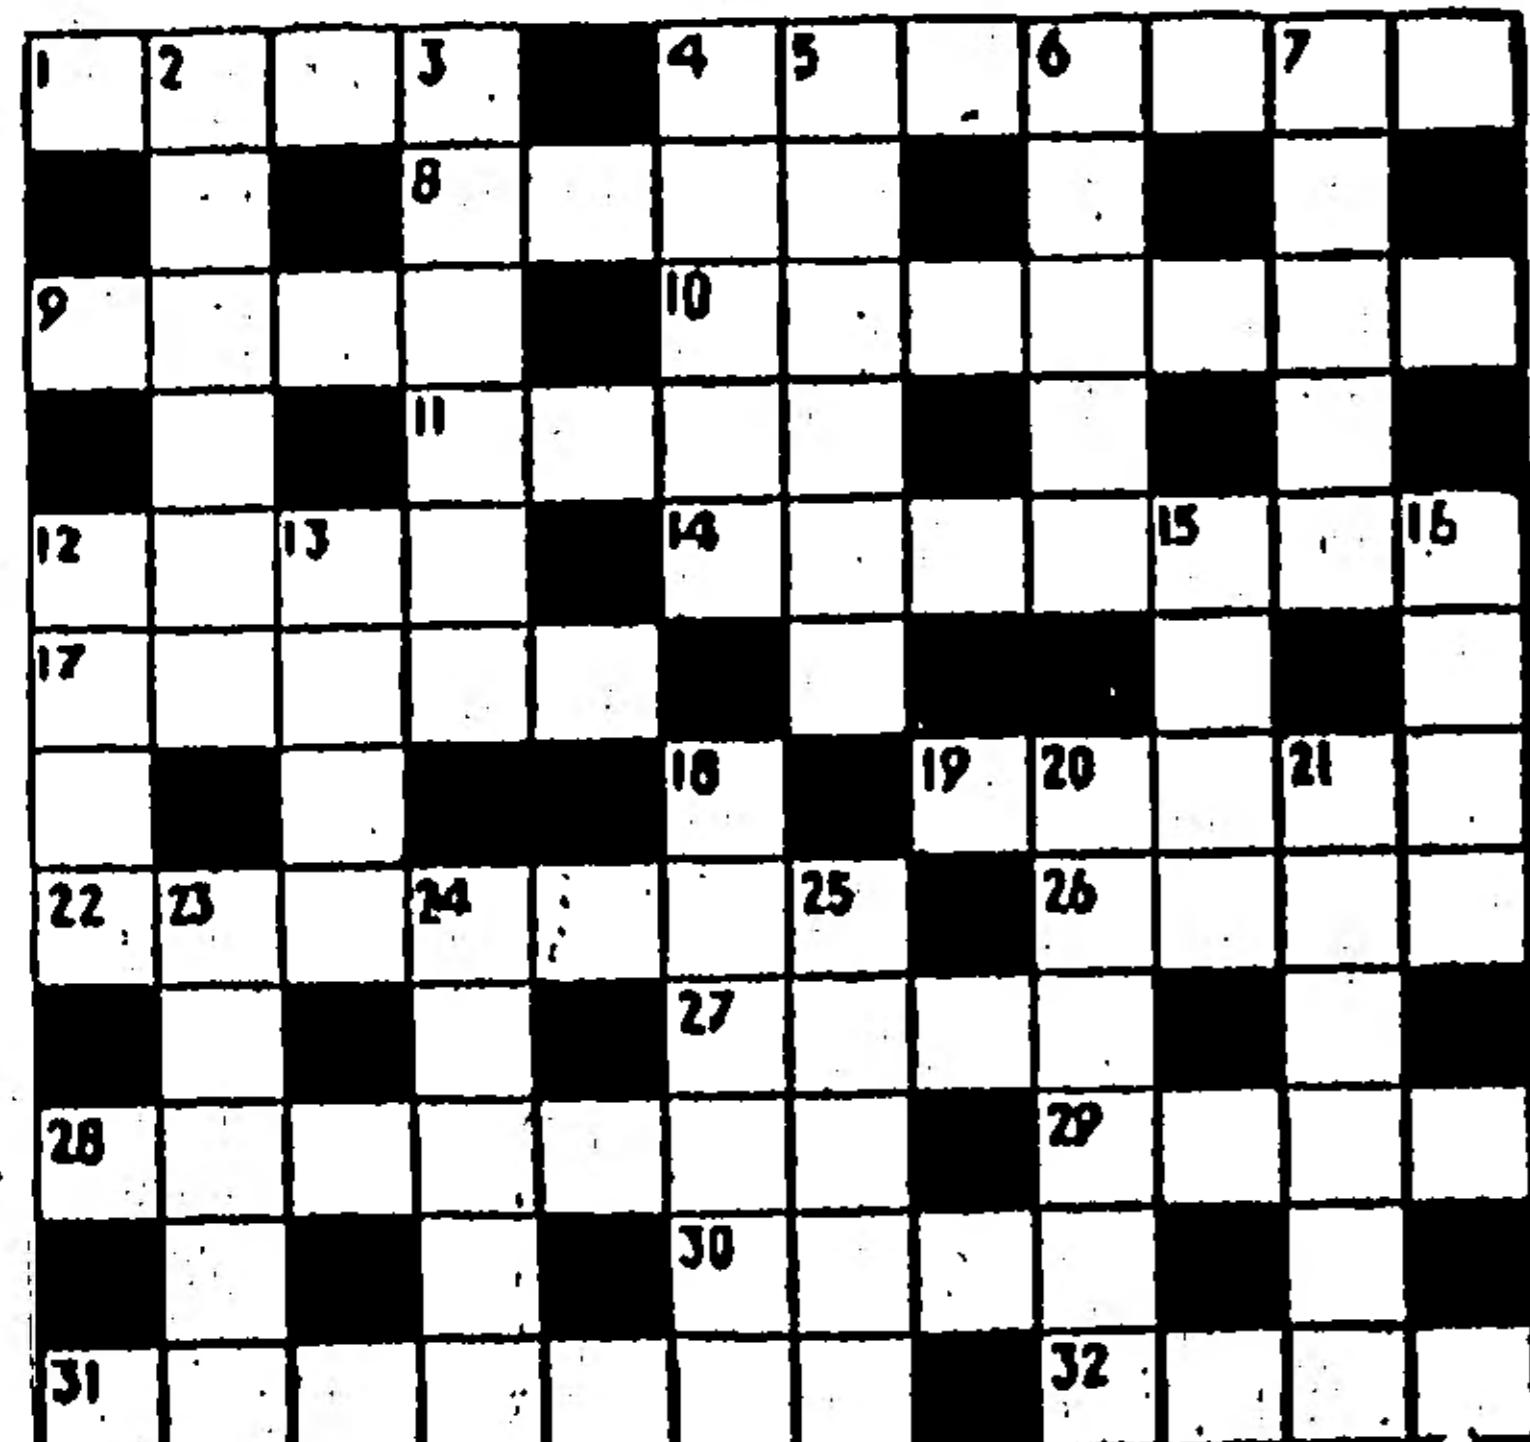

Two Londoners Searched With Mine Detectors

Nicosia, Sept. 21. A British Army spokesman said today British troops had used mine detectors yesterday to search two young Londoners but the search had been made "with every delicacy."

The two Londoners—19-year-old Maureen King of Chingford and her 20-year-old fiance, David Westropp of Edmonton—complained they had been ordered out of a car at bayonet point and bodily searched by British commandos near Limassol despite their protest that they were British citizens.

The Army spokesman said mine detectors had been used "to ensure that arms were not concealed in their clothing." The detectors did not touch their bodies, he added.—China Mail Special.

OTHER QUESTIONS ON THE U.N. AGENDA

United Nations, Sept. 21.

The Steering Committee agreed today to put the question of South Africa's racial policies on the General Assembly agenda once again.

New Zealand abstained from voting. All other members of the committee agreed to place the question on the agenda.

Sir Leslie Knox Munro of New Zealand said his government doubted whether the UN had jurisdiction in the matter.

SOUTH AFRICA

OBJECTS

Two items are involved—treatment of persons of Indian origin in South Africa, and the apartheid (racial segregation) policy of the South African Government.

Mr W.C. du Plessis, South African delegate, told the 15-nation committee that his Government contended the United Nations had no right to go into an "internal" question.

"The issue is one of principle," he said. "We cannot waive the rights of the Union of South Africa."

The Indian delegate, Mr Arthur S. Lall argued that the two items had been on the Assembly agenda for years and were automatically on it this year as the result of last year's resolution.

Mr Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., of the United States, said his Government favoured putting the question on the agenda, as it had in the past. But he said the case "raises a real question about the Assembly's competence in developing its international co-operation for the peaceful uses of the atom.

Mr James Wedsworth of the United States at first suggested the two proposals on the effects of atomic energy be linked under the general heading "effects of atomic radiation on human health and safety."

But Mr Krishna Menon of India said his delegation was not at present prepared to commit itself that these effects were only on human beings.

Mr Wedsworth then agreed to omit the reference to human health and safety.

Mr Menon concurred with this move which the committee approved.

ATOMIC RADIATION

EFFECTS

The Steering Committee later agreed to recommend inscription on the agenda of India's proposal on the effects of atomic radiation.

A United States proposal for discussion or co-ordinating information about the effects of atomic radiation on human health and safety and an Indian one about the dissemination of information on the effects of radiation and of atomic tests will be joined together if the Assembly agrees under the general heading "effects of atomic radiation."

The committee also agreed to recommend the inscription of the report of the General Secretary, Mr Dag Hammarskjöld, on the recent Geneva Conference for Peace, conferences and of governmental reports on progress in developing its

QUESTION

AND THE MOROCCO

The Steering Committee also included the Moroccan item on the agenda today without objection, but France opposed inclusion of the Algerian question.

France followed the same position she took last year in making no comment on the Moroccan item but the French Ambassador M. Hervé Alphand soon immediately afterward to announce his objection to inclusion of the Algerian question.

He said discussion of the issue would take some time and asked adjournment of the day's session because of the lateness of the hour.

The committee also agreed to recommend the inscription of the report of the General Secretary, Mr Dag Hammarskjöld, on the recent Geneva Conference for Peace, conferences and of governmental reports on progress in developing its

Princess Ira Says: 'I Will'

Venice, Sept. 21.

Three hundred aristocrats from all over Europe, gathered in Venice today for the wedding of 15-year-old Princess Ira-Virginia de Furstenberg to Prince Alphonse Maximilien Victor Eugene de Hohenlohe-Langenburg, aged 31.

The Church of Saint Sebastian, where the wedding was held, was decked with gardenias, white roses and violets, with murals by Paul Veronesi. Three thousand candles were lit.

Venice was in a festive mood for the occasion. Under the bright sun, on the banks of the pale Adriatic, crowds of Venetians gathered to watch the Princess pass by in her gondola. Princess Ira has lived in Venice virtually all her life. Now she will join her husband in Mexico.

'SHE'S BEAUTIFUL'

THEY CRIED

As Princess Ira arrived at the church, a gasp went up from the crowd—"She's beautiful!" they cried. The Princess has the grace of her Italian mother, and the beauty of her German ancestors. Among her ancestors there were also French.

Two pages stood at the door of the church, and at the altar, were two valets of the House of Furstenberg in red trousers with gloves and blue coats.

Before the Mass, a telegram from the Pope was read, giving his Apostolic benediction to the wedding.

The telegram was read in Italian, the wedding service was conducted in German and the bride and bridegroom spoke English among themselves.

"It's all been like a marvellous children's party—they are wildly happy. Princess Ira's mother, Donna Clara Furstenberg, said tonight.

Not even their close friends knew where they were to spend the first night of their car journey to Paris. They will spend a few days in Paris and then go on to the United States.—France-Press & China Mail Special.

SIGNED WITH GOOSE QUILLS

ORGANS

Organs played Bach, Zipoli and Schumann. Throughout the wedding service, the sound of the crowd waiting outside impatiently could be heard.

In an adjoining chapel and on a platter of gold, the witnesses signed with goose quills.

A horde of photographers, taking the church by storm, had almost halted the wedding ceremony at the Church of San Sebastian.

Prince Tassilo Furstenberg, 52-year-old father of the bride, sprang up the altar steps exclaiming "I implore, please, I implore you! My daughter must get married. Please leave the altar."

In the stampede the bride's bouquet—a single white orchid which had been previously mislaid—was wrenching from her hands.

LIKE A MARVELLOUS CHILDREN'S PARTY

Prince Alfonso was rowed back to his hotel after the wedding luncheon at the Brandolini Palace to change and to prepare his open white sports car for the honeymoon dash across Europe.

His bride hurried back to her family in the mainland to be unstitched from her Parisian wedding dress and to put on her going away suit of beige linen with matching beige hat and shoes.

TV PLANS

Moscow, Sept. 21. The Soviet Union today announced a three-year plan to make the Moscow television centre the most modern and powerful in the world.

The plan provided for three simultaneous transmissions, two in black and white and one in colour.

Well-Known Film Script Writer Dies

Hollywood, Sept. 21. Academy Award-winning screen writer Robert Riskin, 45, died at his Beverly Hills home last night after an illness of five years.

The late Mr Riskin had been an associate with director-producer Frank Capra on numerous top films and his screen credits included such hits as "Meet Horizon," "You Can't Take It With You," and "Mr Deeds Goes To Town."

He is survived by his widow, actress Fay Wray, two brothers, Everett and Murray, and three children.—United Press.

KATERINA S. TO BE SEARCHED AGAIN

Colombo, Sept. 21. The Greek-owned freighter Katerina S. will be searched again. It was learned today.

The American Embassy ended a fruitless search of the vessel a week ago. The search was requested by the Panamanian government, under whose registry the vessel was sailing.

It was then believed the Katerina S. was carrying arms to China via Haiphong.

He said discussion of the issue would take some time and asked adjournment of the day's session because of the lateness of the hour.

The committee also agreed to recommend the inscription of the report of the General Secretary, Mr Dag Hammarskjöld, on the recent Geneva Conference for Peace, conferences and of governmental reports on progress in developing its

The ship's papers are now in the hands of a lawyer pending the outcome of the Panamanian Government's attempt to suspend registration.

If the Panamanian Government is successful, the ship's owners will seek Costa Rican registry.

Under Colombo port regulations, a ship without registration can be impounded until Friday, when the Argentine question will be discussed.

Today it was learned the Panamanian authorities had ordered to search the ship again.

Meanwhile, all guards have been taken off the ship.

The ship, registered as the Katerina S., who "had immediately"

London, Sept. 21. An outbreak of cholera spread today to Royal Air Force

Emergency precautions were ordered at the camp after one serviceman was found to have contracted the disease.

London Air Ministry spokesman said there was no actual case of cholera at the fighter base.

SHIPBOARD DIARYTHE COMMODORE IS SOCCER MAD

*But the tourists are mad about

Aboard the Queen Elizabeth. IT'S been an interesting voyage. We skirted a hurricane but were tossed about a bit. Sir Ivan Thompson, Commodore of the Cunard Line, demonstrated that he is one of Britain's greatest experts on Soccer and perhaps football's most fanatical follower. Michael Redgrave was trailed by autograph seekers who sometimes addressed him as Mr Wilding, and I got first-hand knowledge of American tourist reaction to Britain and Europe.

The gloomiest man aboard was producer and bandleader Maurice Winnick, who has just seen a television dream, the biggest project he has ever tackled, vanish.

Most dazzling personality by far was James Hanson, Hud-soldier business man and ship's auctioneer supreme, who was once engaged to Audrey Hepburn.

Some titles

WE haven't been landed down with titles though we have Admiral Sir Gordon Ramsey and Lady Ramsey, Sir Russell Kettle, Lady Ross of Balmoral, Sir Harold Webb, M.P., and various foreign Excellencies.

Eighty percent of the passengers are Americans, some of whom have difficulty in handling the English language.

Just when I have been protesting that charges of American boasting are untrue I bang into no fewer than four American passengers who insist that.

the liner United States is far bigger than the Queen Elizabeth. I have pointed out that on the passenger list it says plainly: "Queen Elizabeth - world's largest liner," but the Americans say that's just salesmanship. I've told them I've traveled in the United States and it is dwarfed over the West End. It's terrible. It's disgusting."

I am afraid I have to agree with them. It is a delicate subject, but the world's oldest profession practitioners hit the stranger right in the eye when he visits London. It is very rare indeed to be accosted in New York or any other American city that I know. The street-walker has been driven off the American streets.

The cab-girl flourishes and in some hotel lounges the women are on the lookout for pick-ups, but there is nothing as blatantly ugly as the West End's parade.

The other complaints from the dollar dispensers who disembark today in New York are the familiar ones: dirty washrooms, dirty waiters' and waitresses' uniforms, dirty menus in many of the cheaper hotels, inns, and restaurants, dirty trains and railway stations, copper and silver coins too big, telephone tangles and delays, outdated licensing laws, lack of ice and ice-water, the inability to make cold and dry cocktails.

"Who do you think is better - Tom Finney, of North End, or Stanley Matthews, of Blackpool?" I asked.

The Commodore said: "Finney. He not only makes goals, he scores plenty of them. Football's my great hobby. I travel hundreds of miles to see even Third Division matches. I'll go anywhere and everywhere to see Soccer."

I asked the Commodore which teams he tipped for champions and Cup-winners, but he said it was far too early in the season to attempt a forecast.

Sir Ivan comes from Warrington and is a most unassuming Knight.

The purser, of course, is Lionel Carine, the great diplomat party-giver and celebrity mixer of the North Atlantic. Carine knows more names and remember them than Elsa Maxwell has ever had nightmares about. For years I have been trying to persuade Lionel to write a book, but he seems to be leaving that to the retired captains.

They forget

ONE passenger said to me: "I don't think the British really want tourists. It hurts their pride. They are not tourist-minded like the French or Swiss or Italians." He could be right.

I have listed patiently to the complaints, but when a group of American business men in the smoke-room last night said to me: "The trouble is Britain and Europe are 50 years behind the times—that is the American times," I replied:

"You mean British inventions like radar, the jet plane, television, British discoveries like penicillin, British speed records in the air, on land, and on water."

Bless me, if our American cousins didn't think that the U.S. had invented, discovered, and record-broken the lot!

A grand job

WE are lucky in our Cunard officers. They have some of the world's most exacting and in some ways boring jobs. Almost every night at sea they have to entertain "Blue Riband" passengers, "regulars," friends of the company, actors, business men, columnists, politicians, and other tiresome people.

How would you like to preside over five cocktail parties a week and dine and lunch in public every other day? They do, and find time to run the ship as well.

I've come to the conclusion that the British are better on sea than on land. There is no hotel in Britain, not even in London, to match the Cunard's Queens. The food, the service, the lavishness, the efficiency, are magnificent.

If we want dollars then our Board of Trade officials and our hotel owners had better see how the Queens do it.

Helsingborg. SIX million Swedes are awaiting October 1, with mixed feelings. On and after that day, after being restricted, rationed and restrained for some 35 years, a Swede will be able to enter a shop or restaurant and order what he fancies.

At present no Swedish hotel or restaurant may serve alcohol before midday on weekdays or 1 p.m. on Sundays. Until 3 p.m. each guest may consume 2 ozs. of spirits only. After 3 p.m., 4 ozs. In order to get these quantities the guest must order (though he is under no obligation to eat) food costing the equivalent of three shillings. Women are allowed only 1½ ozs. of spirits before 3 p.m. and 2 ozs. after that hour. To make sure that there is no switching of glasses "Ladies' portions" are removed in glasses of a shape differing from "male glasses."

The consumption of sherry and similar "stout wines" is similarly restricted and the sale of beer containing alcohol is banned.

If he prefers a drink in his own home, the Swede comes up against an even more complicated set of restrictions. First he must be in possession of a "motobok". This is a privilege granted only to worthy citizens who have paid their taxes and proved generally law-abiding.

About every fourth Swede has this coveted liquor-ration book. Of these 200,000 are women (who must be over 25), two million are men over 25 and one million men under 25 who are allowed a "motobok" merely because they are married.

The size of the monthly ration which can be bought from the State Liquor Monopoly's shops varies, according to social

NICE TO HAVE

DID IT HAPPEN?

I GO to the pub, not sure of that—probably part for company, but for of the catch trade from near-quiet. There are a few at Piccadilly—but I have a enough people dashing vague feeling that someone in and out at home, and the where or other I'd come telephone rings its head off across that face before.

About fifty, I judged him to be; light eyes, a beaky nose, rather protruding ears. I didn't find him particularly prepossessing, although I realised he had the sort of flashy looks some women would call handsome.

I sat down as far away from him as possible, and buried my nose deep in the evening paper. It did no good, though; it did no good at all. I don't know how the manoeuvre was effected—quite deliberately I wasn't looking up—but in next to no time he had sat himself in the chair beside me.

I got my drink at the bar, and I could see in the mirror opposite that his eyes were glued to me. He was a stranger there, I felt pretty and record-broken the lot!

I said.

A writer with a reputation for finding something new in notorious crimes today tells a story "with, of course, phoney names."

Tomorrow he will reveal the answer to the question he poses: DID IT HAPPEN?

"Yes, I do remember it," I said.

"You never wrote about it?"

"Nothing special in it to write about."

"No?" He smiled smugly. "Perhaps I could tell you different."

He took out a wallet, and carefully extracted from it a tattered sheet of newspaper which he unfolded, smoothed and spread out on the table.

"You see," he said, "this is the best report they printed of the trial."

The locket had been the most curious feature in the case, and

"Well, where is it now?" I said.

"I have it," he said.

We sat without speaking for a full minute or more. He was merrily sauntering his dramatic triumph. I was trying to absorb its implications.

"Aren't you sticking out your neck a bit?" I said. "Supposing I described this conversation to the police?"

He shrugged his shoulders.

"Wouldn't matter. They'd never move. Not now."

"Don't be too sure," I said.

"Anyway, I'd deny everything. I'd say you made it up."

"There's the locket," I said.

"They won't find that in a million years," he said. "No, they couldn't prove a thing."

He got up.

I guessed that he was right. I gazed at him, helplessly impotent as he finished off his drink and got up from the chair.

"Well, it's been nice meeting you," he said.

"Tell me just one thing," I said. "Have you ever breathed a word of this to anyone before?"

"No," he said.

"Why did you pick on me?"

"He had the nerve to wink."

"You can make a story out of it when you're short of one!" He winked again, took a step or two towards the door, then came back and spoke low into my ear.

"Of course, with phoney names," he said. "For your protection, not for mine. Of course, with phoney names."

He winked yet a third time, and finally went out.

And so here is the story—of course, with phoney names.

THIS is the best joke about the new tin-lined wine is that it is beginning to be taken seriously. Will waiters lay the tins in cradles and carefully manipulate the tin-opener?

No diner will be able to complain that the wine is corked, and it will probably taste just as good if drunk straight from the tin. The tin are "especially treated," so that there is no danger in drinking the contents! Will bigger tins be popular barrels? Why not plastic grapes made in factories? Chateau Snibbola, which appeals to the more discriminating drinker, is still served in bottles, with the label showing the chateau-factory, and under it, Mise en Bouteilles au Laboratoire, or simply Mise du Laboratoire.

Keep Bridge Foes Guessing

By OSWALD JACOBY

WHEN an opponent makes a peculiar bid, it doesn't always pay to "keep him honest." For one thing, your correction may be an expensive venture; and, for another, the enemy may be more confused than your side is about the peculiar bid. Today's hand illustrates the principle.

North's bid of one spade was slightly peculiar, but not really unusual. Many experts consider any four-card holding biddable, even four cards headed by the five-spot! As a matter of fact, it's hard to choose a sensible response for North. He isn't eager to raise hearts with only three small cards in the suit, and he isn't eager to bid a mere no-trump with 10 points in high-card strength.

South wasn't encouraged by the response of one spade. He jumped to four hearts, showing a good hand and a solid suit, leaving it up to North to make the first move toward slam.

As it happened, North couldn't move. There would be no slam if South had three spades headed by the queen instead of Fifteen cards are fabulic. Hair-dressing personalities are to match. The late Monsieur Vasco was the first modern maestro I remember, with his great cloak and theatrical manners. And now Mr Raymond carries on the tradition, with his blue buttonhole and moleskin revers. His suburban imitators help to sell the 70 percent a touch of glamour with their shampoo and set.

An enormous amount of money is going into advertising, and hair is now big news. When Princess Margaret went to the Caribbean she took her new hairdresser with her in colour, and her Renaissance line made the front-page in most of the national dailies.

Profit or loss

Viewing has also made us conscious of our crowning glories. For television has brought the severed human head, right into our sitting-rooms, and vast close-ups of Miss Cogan's hair, while younger boys and girls passed the pine and kept the mirrors shining.

All this diverted your attention from the fact that the maestro was nowhere to be seen. It usually seemed to be his day at the other branch or on special Dorett duties.

Yet behind the scenes many hairdressers work like beavers. If they are as good craftsmen as showmen, they are constantly training their staff in their own techniques. But it takes years of practice and experience to hit the jackpot and own a Maison.

To keep us returning to their clefts, the hairdressers of the world constantly launch new fashions. A famous creation with a catchy name can sweep Europe. As a housewife I drew the line at a Meringue: "Little peaks of hair are brushed up and swirled around to look like the points of stiff beaten egg white," breathes its creator. But in my time I have been a Page Boy, a Poodle and an Urschin—and I've never regretted it.

One morning after a noisy night with the babies, I visited my jewel of a hairdresser feeling like Anna Neagle's Queen Victoria at her Diamond Jubilee. Mr Semmens flicked the comb over my scalp, called "Oil, Miss Doreen," and the shampoo did her worst.

An hour later I left looking like Kirk Douglas in Ulysses. What a rejuvenating experience! Who could ask for more?

An art

When I lived in Knightsbridge I attended a famous salon whose maestro had developed this division of labour to a fine art. From the moment of my arrival I was enveloped in a breathless whirl of girls. The foyer was full of female flunkies, receptionists, and cloakroom attendants lurking behind ivy-covered trellises.

Flurries of shampooists, scissars, hinters, and manleurists scurried about their jobs. Handsome young men with French names styled and shaped the hair, while younger boys and girls passed the pine and kept the mirrors shining.

All this diverted your attention from the fact that the maestro was nowhere to be seen. It usually seemed to be his day at the other branch or on special Dorett duties.

Going On A Picnic?

MEN LIKE HUSKY BEEF SANDWICHES

By IDA BAILEY ALLEN

"MADAME, I have the honour to unveil the latest thing on the food horizon—the pre-wrapped picnic plate."

With a bow so low his high bonnet almost touched the patio floor and a whisk of a covering napkin, the Chef revealed a delightful sandwich plate.

"Regardez, Madame; this is a picnic dinner. Covering it all securely is shimmering plastic food wrap. The lady can prepare the picnic plates ahead and refrigerate them until ready to go."

"That's an idea with great possibilities, Chef," I told him.

"If the sandwiches, relishes and cookies assembled are suitable, the picnic plates could be wrapped and frozen ready to use even days in advance. The foods would thaw within 30 minutes ready to eat."

"All of the food on this plate, except the radishes, would be suitable for freezing, Madame."

"We have big husky beef-filled sandwiches, pickles, and favourite chocolate-nut-raisin cookies; add freshly-prepared stuffed eggs, fruit and a cold drink for a fine meal."

"However, here's a tip for the ladies: More husbands will be in favour of picnics if the sandwiches are large and contain as much meat as they usually would eat at the dinner table."

Husky Beef Sandwich Filling: Remove as much fat as possible from 3 to 4 lb. boiling beef. Place the meat in a kettle. Add 4 t. boiling water, 1 sliced peeled onion, 2 tsp. salt, ½ tsp. mixed pickling spice tied in a piece of cheese-cloth and 1 tsp. monosodium glutamate.

Cover and simmer 3 hrs., or until fork-tender. Most of the liquid will evaporate. Chop the meat into small pieces. Roll down the liquid to make ½ c. Stir into the meat. Pack into a refrigerator dish, cover and chill before using.

Picnic Dinner: Stuffed Hard-Cooked Eggs Husky Beef Sandwiches Pickles Radishes Chocolate-Nut Drop Cookies Fruit Hot or Iced Coffee or Tea Milk

All Measurements Are Level
Recipes Proportioned to Serve 4 to 6

Chocolate-Nut Drop Cookies: Blend ½ c. shortening with 6 tbsp. granulated sugar and 6 tbsp. brown sugar. Beat and add 1 egg. Sift together 1½ c. already-sifted enriched flour with ½ tsp. baking soda, ¼ tsp. salt, and ¼ tsp. cinnamon.

Add ½ c. each chopped nuts and chopped raisins and 1 c. semi-sweet chocolate morsels. Drop by teaspoons on an oiled cookie sheet. Bake 10-12 min. in moderate oven, 375 deg. F. Makes 50.

Trick of the Chef: Season stuffed hard-cooked eggs with anchovy paste.

Household Hints: A rolling table in the laundry is often more convenient than a built-in counter, because it can be right where you need it—beside the washer for sorting the laundry, ready in any spot for sprinkling, and beside the ironing board to hold clothes before ironing and flat pieces after ironing.

To renew the lustre of leather, pour some creamy wax onto a dampened cloth and rub the article lightly to loosen dirt. Polish immediately with a clean, dry cloth, not waiting for the wax to dry. The patent leather will come clean and shiny.

Pipe cleaners are excellent for cleaning small parts of all sorts of home equipment. They're especially effective on sewing machines.

YOUR BIRTHDAY... By STELLA

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 22

BORN today, you have one of those "Maybe yes—Maybe no" minds and are always standing on the fence wondering if what you plan to do will be the right thing if you finally decide to do it. This attitude can defeat your best potentialities. Learn to concentrate on one objective, make up your mind about it, and then marshall all your forces toward achieving that goal. If you will do this the talents which the stars have given you will be developed to their fullest extent.

Among those born on this date are: Eleanor Hellowell Abbott, author; Augustus Longstreet, educator; Michael Faraday, scientist; Joseph Seligman, banker; Paul Muni, actor; Dorothy Dalton, actress.

You could be a little more frank and open in your approach to people, too, for it is difficult for others to know how to act if you don't put your cards face up on the table for consideration. Impulsive and quick-tempered, you should learn to keep your emotions under control although your magnetic charm impels people to forgive you.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 23

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23)—There may be domestic problems that are difficult. Concentrate on a solution. Be tactful and wise.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23)—If you should fall into the error of giving unasked advice—make sure it is absolutely foolproof!

CANCER (June 22-July 22)—Perhaps you can offer to help a friend who is in serious quandary over something.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)—There's a lot to be done today so that you will need to make careful plans to finish the job on time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22)—A new idea may need to develop before you announce it. Don't be too hasty in talking about it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 20)—Even though annoyed by the actions and comments of another, remain silent and thus keep the peace.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 18)—Don't talk too much. You might give away an important secret, which you would better keep.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20)—You may find minor upsets in your production schedule but press on with slight advantages and win out.

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 20)—New ideas may prove the key-stones to your arch of success. Discuss them and adopt any good suggestions.

TAURUS (Apr. 21-May 21)—Tighten up your purse strings and don't go overboard. You'll want to save for something later.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21)—Get an early start on important work so that when evening comes you can relax with friends at a party.

THE BIG FIGHT: ROUND BY ROUND

New York, Sept. 21.

The following is a blow-by-blow account of the world heavyweight title fight between Rocky Marciano (holder) and Archie Moore.

(The two judges were announced as Harold Barnes and Artie Aidala. Referee Harry Kessler called them to the centre of the ring for their instructions).

Marciano wore white trunks trimmed with black and Moore black trunks trimmed with gold.

They were sparring cautiously but Moore got in a left to Marciano's right eye. Marciano countered with a hard right to the body. Moore took a left hook to the chin and danced away from Marciano.

Marciano was short with a left, Moore flicked a light left to Marciano's forehead. Marciano drilled a left to the jaw and Moore floored Marciano with a right to the jaw. Marciano got up at the count of four.

It was the second time in Marciano's career as a pro that he was knocked down, but he came back fighting. He drove a left and then a right to the body and then took a hard right to the chin.

Moore missed with a looping left but drilled a hard right to the face. Marciano was starting to bleed from the nose. Marciano also had a bruise on his left eye.

Marciano pushed Moore into the ropes with a left to the jaw and a right to the body. Moore drilled a hard right to Marciano's chin but Rocky came back with a left to the body as the round ended.

THIRD ROUND

Marciano drilled a left to Moore's head and Moore countered with a right to the face. Marciano drove a flurry of lefts and rights, none of which hurt to Moore's body.

Moore drove a hard right upper cut to Marciano's chin. Rocky was short with a right and Moore flicked two lefts off Marciano's bruised left eye.

Marciano's right was short to Moore's shoulder but Moore got his left into Marciano's left eye again. Marciano appeared tired and blood started pouring from his nose again.

Marciano was wild with another right but landed a left to the body and then a right to the chin.

Moore drove Marciano into the ropes but Marciano countered with a hard right to the jaw which staggered Moore. Marciano drove Moore into the ropes with a flurry of lefts and rights to the body and Marciano then landed a hard left uppercut to Moore's jaw as the round ended.

FOURTH ROUND

Moore missed a left as they went into a clinch. Marciano was short with a left but then drove Moore into the ropes with a hard right to the body.

Moore landed a light left as he spun off the ropes but Rocky again crowded Moore into the ropes with a left hook and then a hard right to the head.

Moore pushed a left to the head and a right to the body and then came off the ropes again. But now Marciano was doing all the punching and Moore all the taking.

Marciano hit him with a looping right. Marciano drove Moore into the ropes again with a right to the jaw but missed with a left hook.

Marciano kept Moore against the ropes with a flurry of rights and lefts and it looked like Moore was almost out on his feet.

However, he drove Marciano back with a left to the head but again Marciano drove Moore into the ropes and Archie seemed helpless as Marciano kept pummelling lefts and rights to the head.

Marciano drove a hard right off Moore's chin and followed with a left uppercut as the bell sounded.

FIFTH ROUND

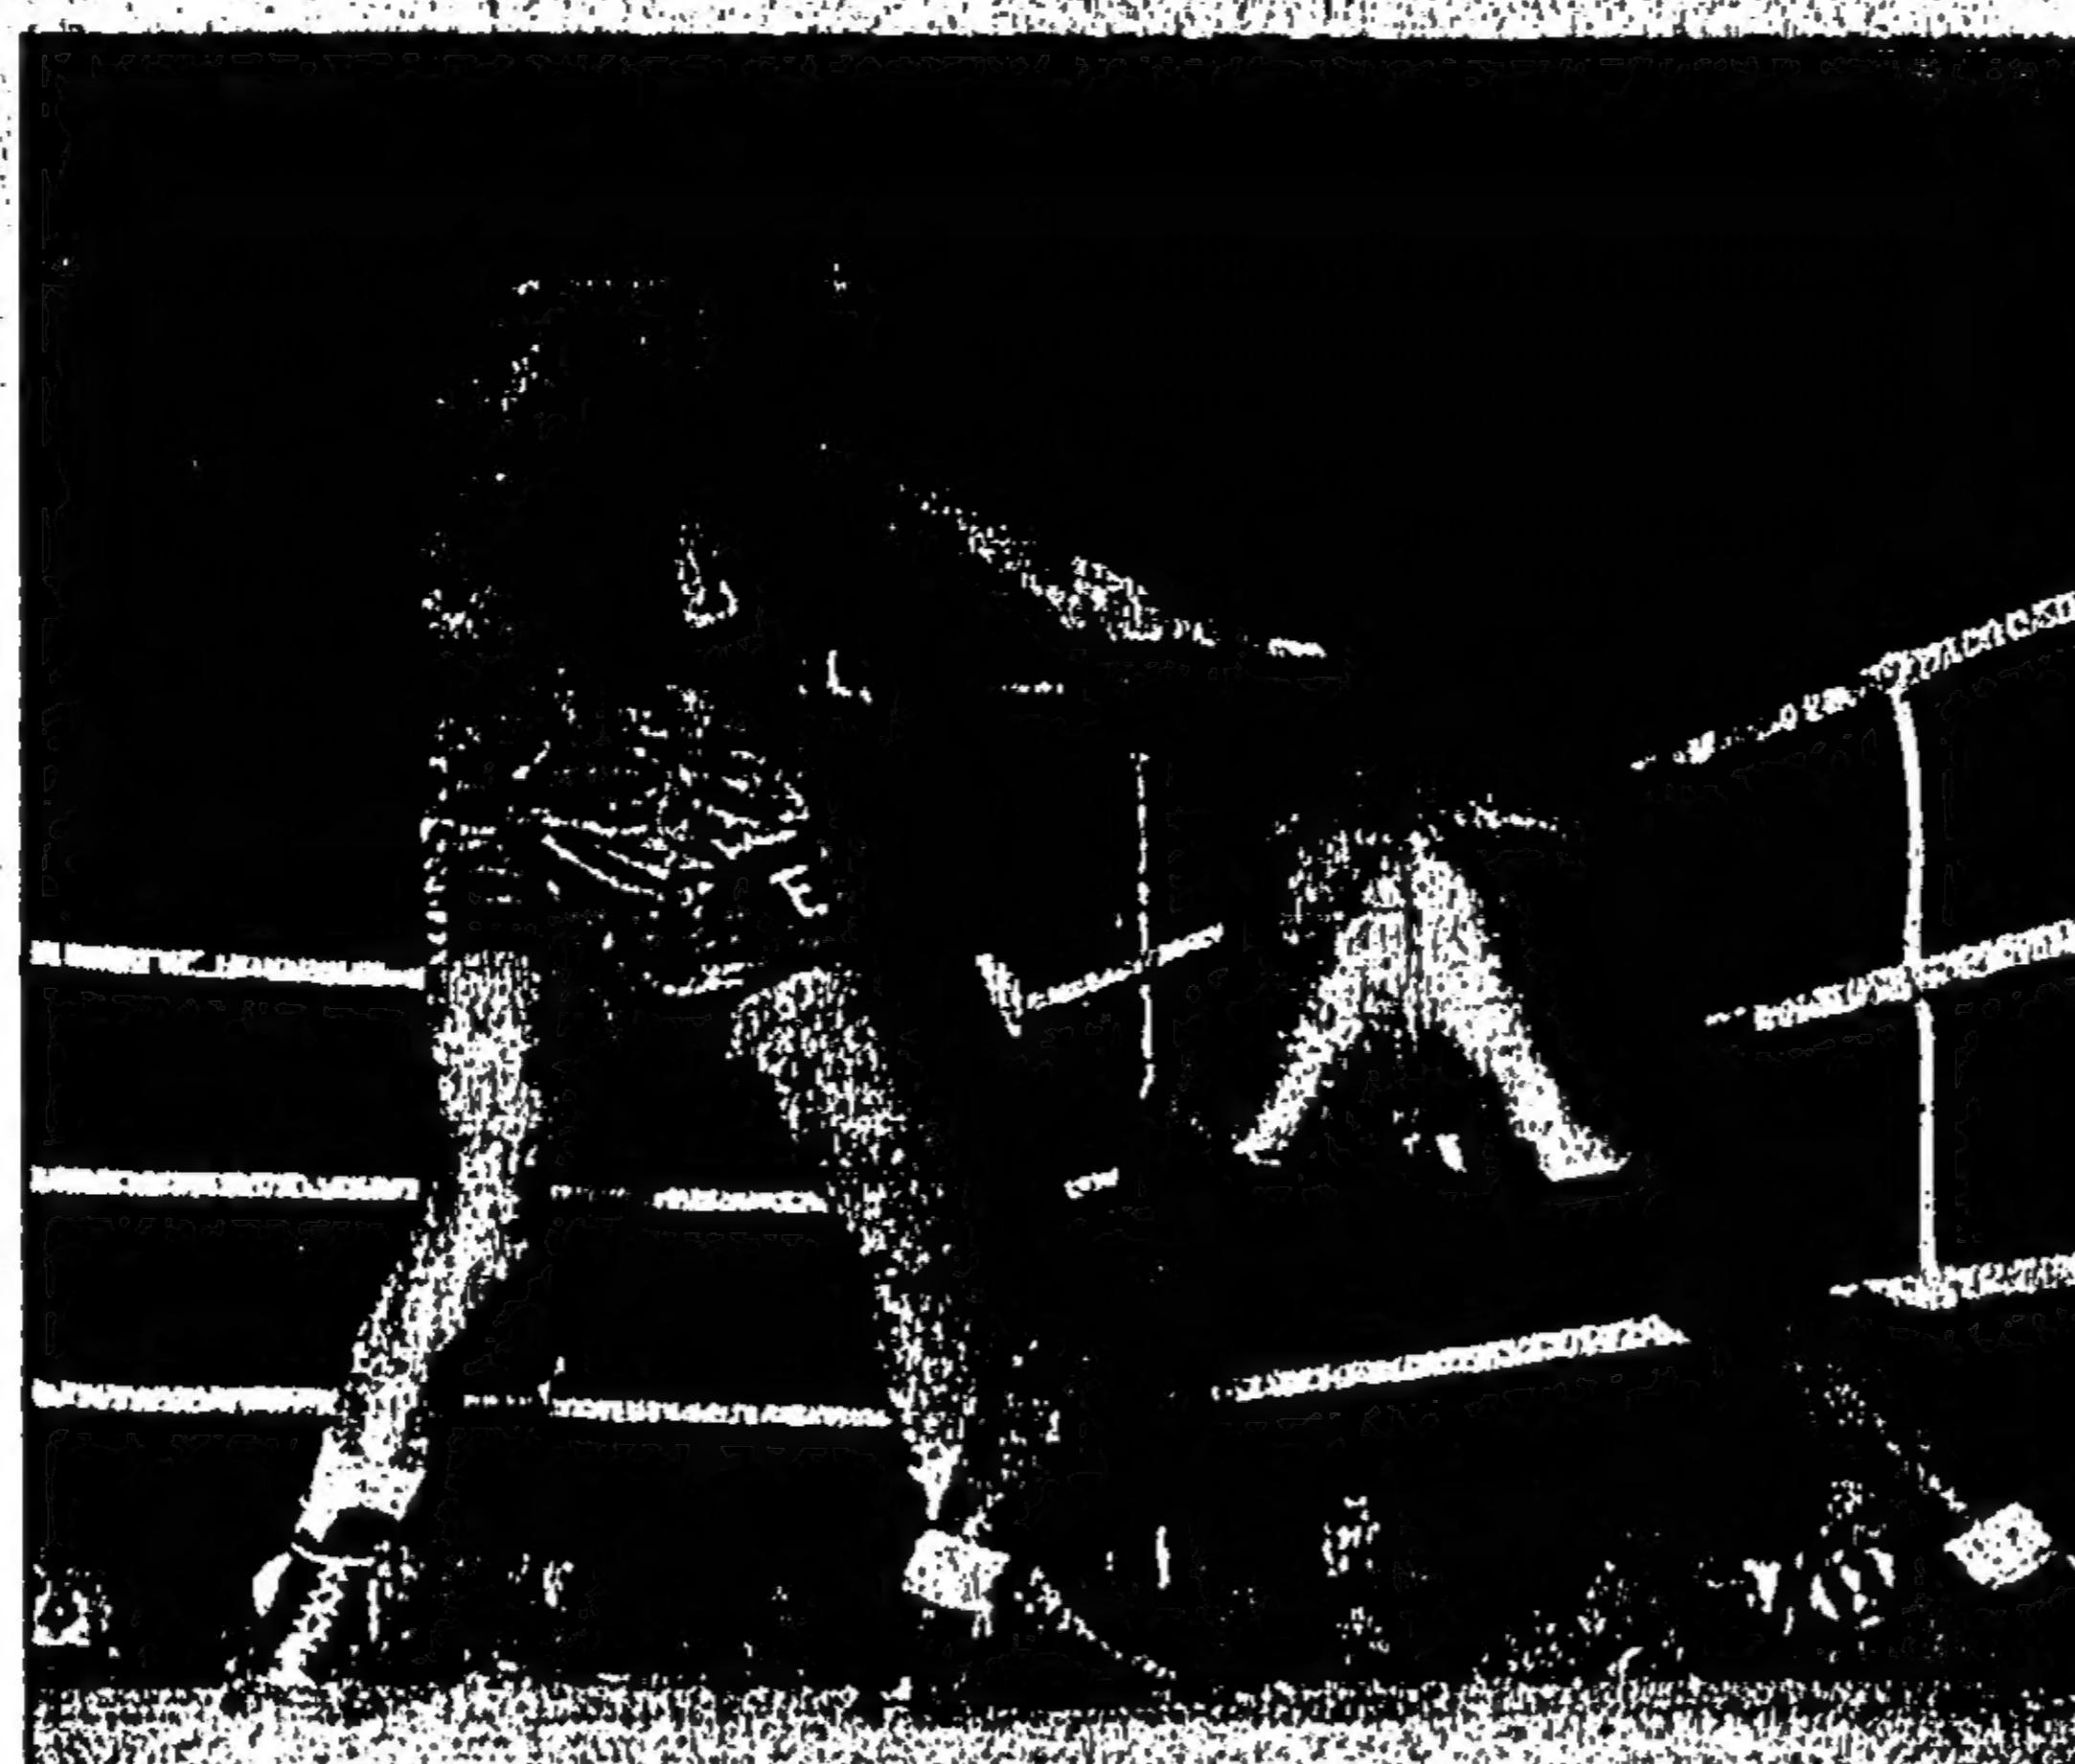

Moore was bleeding from his right eye as they came out for the fifth round.

Marciano drove a light right to Moore's body and Moore was short with a left jab. Marciano trying to manoeuvre Moore into a corner, landed a left to the body and a right right to the head.

Moore, however, stayed in the centre of the ring and landed a series of light left jabs to Marciano's head.

Marciano drove Moore into the ropes with a left but Moore bounced back with a series of body blows which did not seem to bother Rocky too much.

SIXTH ROUND VICTORY

Ewart Potgieter, 7 ft 2 ins tall, near 23 stone boxer from South Africa, throws his left at coloured opponent Simon Templar of Jamaica, during Potgieter's first fight in Britain, which he won when the Jamaican retired in the interval following the sixth round.

The fight was at London's White City Stadium on the same card as the Cockell-Valdes bout. Potgieter had seven fights in South Africa prior to coming to London.—Daily Express Photo.

Schoolboys Did Well In Minor Counties Cricket

By A Times Correspondent

It is a rare distinction for a boy to play in first-class cricket before, or immediately after, leaving school, as did M. C. Cowdrey (Tonbridge) for Kent in 1950 and R. W. Barber (Ruthin) last year for Lancashire. In the next lower grade, however, the Minor Counties competition, a few schoolboys appear every season, sometimes with notable success.

The biggest mark this summer was made by P. H. Parfitt, who has another year at Fakenham Grammar School and who headed both batting and bowling averages for Norfolk. He is a left-handed batsman and left-arm spin bowler; he scored 401 runs at an average of 57.28 and was awarded his County cap after making 131 against Kent II.

Marciano landed a hard right to the jaw which dropped Moore to his right knee for a count of three. Referee Kessler ruled it was a slip and not a knockdown.

Moore hooked Marciano's left hook but Rocky then drove two lefts to Moore's head and a right to the stomach. He hurt Moore with another right to the jaw but Rocky came back with a left to the mouth and drove Moore into the ropes with a right to the jaw.

But Rocky was wild with his punches and Moore, not fighting back at all, just stood against the ropes with his gloved covering his head as the bell ended the round.

Moore missed with a right and took a light left to the face. Rocky drove a right and a left to the body and drove Moore into the ropes again with a right to the head. Rocky was short with a left but then drilled another right to Moore's head, Moore countering with a left and right to Rocky's head.

Moore was wild with a right uppercut. And Rocky was wild with a left. Moore drilled a left to the body but took a left to the body in return.

Marciano was wild with a right but then drilled a right to the jaw, driving Rocky into the ropes again.

Once more, Marciano hit Moore almost as well as he backed Archie against the ropes with Archie just covering his head with his gloves and fighting back, feebly.

Moore drilled a hard right to the head but Marciano countered with a hard left and right to the body—his right appearing to be below the belt line.

Again Rocky drove Archie into the ropes and once more Moore seemed helpless as Marciano landed rights and lefts. But Rocky always was missing with the kayak punch.

Rockey knocked Archie down with a right to the jaw as the bell ended the round. The count was six when the bell sounded.

Moore thought the fight was over and his handlers had to assist him to his corner again.

NINTH ROUND

Marciano was short with a left but drove a hard right to Moore's face and had Archie against the ropes, pummelling him with lefts and right as Archie was helpless.

Marciano drilled a hard right to the head, a left to the body and then a third left to the jaw.

Marciano drilled a hard right to the head, a left to the body and then a hard left to the jaw, but Moore stood up under it all although he needed the support of the ropes.

Marciano was bouncing hard rights off Moore's head as Archie could not counter at all.

Moore finally went down under a left hook and was counted out by Kessler at 1.10 on the round—China Mail Special.

HOLLAND BEATEN

Vienne, Sept. 21. Rapid, the Vienne football club, beat R.S.V. Eindhoven of Holland by six goals to one in the first round of the European Championships today, after being held 46-46 at half-time.—China Mail Special.

Potty The Giant Passed His First Test With Flying Colours

Says DENNIS HART

Freak or future champ?

That was a question forty thousand British boxing fans wanted to see answered at London's White City stadium last week when they braved the rain to see South African giant Ewart Potgieter pit his 22 stone 12 lbs. against the 16 stone 12 lbs. of Jamaica's Simon Templar.

When, after six rounds of mauling, the "little" six-foot Jamaican was forced to retire, the general verdict was that despite his 7 ft. 2 ins, the South African would do well to keep even more than a Potgieter arm's length away from the Marcianos of this world.

At the moment I agree with them. So does Potgieter. But I have a hunch we are going to hear more about this genial 22-year-old.

Manager Norman Weiner was well satisfied with "Potty's" White City performance. That, of course, is part of a boxing manager's job. He doesn't get 26 per cent for labelling his man as stiff.

COMMONSENSE

Yet there was much common sense in the words addressed to me after ascertaining a still fresh-as-paint Potgieter buck from the White City ring.

"Remember," said Weiner, "that Ewart is a novice. His professional boxing career before fighting Templar consisted of seven fights which gave him just 17 minutes of ring action. And World Champions aren't made in 17 minutes."

"Like any prospect, he needs experience. That was why we came to Britain. He's passed his first test with flying colours. Carrying nearly 23 stone, it's difficult to glide like a ballet dancer. Yet Ewart moved well. And what's more important, he kept moving. This proved he had stamina. That was my main doubt. Before, only one of his fights had reached the second round."

Looking across at the smiling Potgieter face, unmarked by one bead of sweat, I was forced to agree.

Weiner makes no rash promises. Ewart, he agrees, must learn to punch, learn to box in fact.

Because of his frightening physique Potgieter will find few willing to give him a stand up fight. He had a sample of what to expect from the spoiling of the experienced Templar. With the South African's chin virtually unreachably target the Jamaican plumped for close-in body work. Short of going outside the ropes that was just about the safest place to be.

FRUSTRATION

Potgieter must learn to turn an opponent round and force him into the open. Against Templar he did little more than pummel the gloves protecting the Jamaican's face. Templar was probably more exhausted by frustration than anything else.

Can "Potty" learn? Weiner and trainer Johnny Weir are convinced he can. "He's intelligent, keen, and always listens to advice," Weir tells me.

Potgieter will stay in Britain for at least four months, and have three or four fights. Then we should know how far this moving Table Mountain may go in the boxing world.

The beginning, then, for one fighter. For another, September 13 at the White City may have marked the end. That fighter is Don Cockell.

Tubby, beaten in three rounds by the porter-like Cuban Nine Valdes, has as yet made no decision to quit the ring. Even if he carries on I think he has reached the end of the road as far as world class boxing goes.

Rest scores were: Harry Bradshaw (68), Eric Brown (69), two of the men fighting for Ryder Cup berths, were named earlier. They are Rees of South Hearts captain, Christine O'Connor of Buderan, Sid Scott of Carlisle, Harry Bradshaw of Portmarnock, Harry Weetman of Croham Hurst, Ken Bousfield of Coombe Hill and John Jacobs of Sandy Lodge.

Seven members of the team automatically chosen by their positions in the season's order of merit up to and including the Open Championship in July, were named earlier. They are Rees of South Hearts captain, Christine O'Connor of Buderan, Sid Scott of Carlisle, Harry Bradshaw of Portmarnock, Harry Weetman of Croham Hurst, Ken Bousfield of Coombe Hill and John Jacobs of Sandy Lodge.

Tournaments since the open, notably the Match Play Championship last week and the Masters event, which ended today, determined the final three places.

Bousfield won the Match Play and Bradshaw the Masters, but they were already among the named men.

The only newcomers to Ryder Cup honours are O'Connor, an Irishman, Scott, Jacobs and Fallon.

Brown, 30 years old former Scottish Amateur Champion who won his singles in the Ryder Cup match of 1953, gained his place by his performance in being runner-up in the Match Play Championship last week.

Lees who is 47, has played in three Ryder Cup matches since the war but was dropped for the 1953 match.

Fallon was always strongly fancied for not only was he runner-up in last year's Match Play Championship but was also second in this year's open—China Mail Special.

Birmingham, Sept. 21. Dan Rees, Britain's Ryder Cup captain, ended the British Golf season as winner of the Harry Vardon Trophy by heading the Order of merit table with a points average of 6.87 for eight tournaments.

Harry Bradshaw, the Dunlop winner, took second place, with an average of 6.80, for seven tournaments. Ken Bousfield was third with an average of 6.85 for eight tournaments.

Eric Brown of Buchanan Castle, Arthur Lees of Sunningdale and John Fallon of Huddersfield Reuter.

Giants' Mays Doubtful Starter In Remaining Three Games

New York, Sept. 21.

The New York Giants suffered the final blow of a disappointing campaign today when Willie Mays crashed into the bleacher wall at the Polo grounds and was removed from the field on a stretcher during a 7-3 sweep of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

X-Rays at the Medical Centre were negative but the Major League's home run leader is a doubtful starter in all the Giants remaining three games. Mays, who has hit 50 homers, contributed a single, double and triple to the Giants attack in the first game.

The tournament will include Men's Singles, Men's Doubles, Schoolboys' Singles and Schoolboys' doubles.

Entrance fees for men's singles will be $10 per entry and the doubles will be $15 per pair. Schoolboys' entries for the singles will be $8 each while $8 will be charged for the doubles.

Entry forms may be obtained from CRC or from the Hongkong Sports Club, Gloucester Arcade.

Mrs Pusinelli won the deciding set, 6-4, to take the Colony Ladies' Singles Tennis Championship from Mrs Mary Chow at the Ladies' Recreation Club yesterday. The game was continued from the previous night, when it had been called off owing to bad light, with the score at 10-8, 3-0, 3-3, Mrs Chow having won the second set on Tuesday.

Mrs Chow was far from her best yesterday and lost many points through faulty stroke play. Mrs Pusinelli attacked from the start to take the first game. Mrs Chow leveled the score at 4-4 but her determined opponent, using her speed to the best advantage, managed to return some of her hardest cross-court drives and won the next two games for set and match.

In the Colony Ladies' plate final, Miss Phyllis Kho beat Miss Y. Tsui 6-4, 6-4. This was a hard-fought game and both girls played well, exhibited good stroke play and an appreciation of tactics that augurs well for the future of ladies' tennis in Hongkong.

THE RESULTS

The following were the results of yesterday's games:

Colony Ladies' Singles Final: Mrs Pusinelli beat Mrs M. Chow 10-8, 6-4, 6-4.

Colony Ladies' Plate Final: Miss Phyllis Kho beat Miss Y. Tsui 6-4, 6-4.

CRC Men's Singles Handicap: Van de Heek beat Thompson 6-2.

Club Men's Singles: Mr. H. Keenan beat A. Mackie 6-3, 6-2; D.G.L. Green beat J. Cotter 6-2, 6-2.

Club Mixed Doubles: R. Gandy and Mrs. Gandy beat Mr. and Mrs. Watson 6-6, 6-7. E. Zuliani and Mrs. Lubbock beat I.H. Kendall and Mrs. Lubbock 6-6, 6-4; W.H. Williams and Mrs. Williams beat J. and Mrs. Gold 6-6, 6-3; E.A. Rawlings and Mrs. Fowler beat M. Calver and Mrs. Kite 6-1, 6-4.

TO-DAY'S GAMES

Club Ladies' Doubles: Court 9: Mr. Frean and Mrs. Kite; Rischard v. Mrs. Fowler and Mrs. Kite.

Court 8: Mrs. M. Hodges v. Miss D. Gould; Court 3: Mrs. Green v. Mrs. Thompson.

Club Mixed Doubles (Semifinal):

Court 7: Mr. and Mrs. Prophet v. Miss Madgett and Mr. Rainger; Court 6: F. C. Stuckey and Dr. Lett v. Mr. Keenan and Mrs. Rawlings.

Club Men's Doubles: Court 2: E. Sauballe and A. Widmer.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 23

(A.M. 11 a.m.)

Club Mixed Doubles: Court 5: R. Gandy and Mrs. Getz v. Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong.

Ladies' Doubles: Court 4: Mrs. Madgett and Miss Zewald.

Inter-House Handicap: Court 9: G. McPherson and Mr. Pritchard; Court 8: G. Puncheon and T. W. Yau (Jardine).

Mixed Doubles Handicap:

Court 7: Mr. and Mrs. Protheroe v. Mr. and Mrs. Scholes v. H. Williams and Mrs. Keenan; Court 6: Mrs. V. Dyk and Mr. Keenan.

Men's Singles Handicap: Court 5: J. Crofton v. D.G.L. Green.

Ladies' Doubles Handicap: Court 3: Mrs. Godfrid and Mrs. Barnett v. Mrs. Branda and Mrs. Siroykin.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 24

(A.M. 11 a.m.)

Club Men's Doubles: Court 9: M. Keenan and Gould v. D.G.L. Green and Mr. Stuckey; Court 8: C. Stuckey and Dr. Lett; Court 7: G.A.L. Cheyne and Dr. Lett; Court 6: J. Crofton v. D.G.L. Green and Dr. Lett.

Club Men's Handicap: Court 9: G. McPherson and Mr. Pritchard; Court 8: G. Puncheon and T. W. Yau (Jardine); Court 7: G. McPherson and Mr. Pritchard; Court 6: G. Puncheon and T. W. Yau (Jardine); Court 5: J. Crofton v. D.G.L. Green.

ROZSAVOLGYI EQUALS 1,000M. WORLD RECORD

London, Sept. 22.

Istvan Rozsavolgyi, of Hungary, today equalled the world record for 1,000 Metres when he ran the distance in 2 miles, 10 secs at Tata, northwest of Budapest, according to the Hungarian News Agency, MTAT.

Audon Boysen, of Norway, clocked the same time in Gothenburg on August 30, but this has not yet been ratified as a world record.

The official record, also set by Boysen, is 2 miles 10.5 secs—

HARDCOURT CHAMPIONSHIPS START OCT. 11

The Chinese Recreation Club announced late yesterday that the 1955 Colony Hardcourt Tennis Championships will commence on Tuesday, October 11.

The tournament will include Men's Singles, Men's Doubles, Schoolboys' Singles and Schoolboys' doubles.

Entrance fees for men's singles will be $10 per entry and the doubles will be $15 per pair. Schoolboys' entries for the singles will be $8 each while $8 will be charged for the doubles.

Entry forms may be obtained from CRC or from the Hongkong Sports Club, Gloucester Arcade.

In the first inning of the nightcap, however, Mays crashed into the bleacher wall at the Polo grounds and was removed from the field on a stretcher during a 7-3 sweep of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Don Liddle pitched four-hits ball to win his 10th game in the opener and Romon Monzant tossed a three-hitter for his fourth win in the nightcap.

Gus Bell drove in eight runs with a grand-slam homer and Ted Kluszewski hit his 40th homer of the season to lead the Cincinnati Redlegs to a 14-5 rout of the Milwaukee Braves in the other National League day game.

In American League day games, Ray Boone and Harvey Kuenn homered to lead the Detroit Tigers to a 10-1 triumph over the Kansas City Athletics and the Baltimore Orioles made it seven straight victories with an 8-7 decision over the Boston Red Sox.

Scottish League Beats Irish 4-2

Dublin, Sept. 21.

Over 25,000 spectators were thrilled by a stirring game at Dalymount Park here tonight when a much-vaulted Scottish Football League side defeated the League of Ireland by four goals to two.

Despite the score against them, the Irish team gave a fiery display and the Scottish defenders were often forced to adopt desperate measures. The home side fought to the end, and, but for a shaky defence, might have caused a big upset.

The Scottish League opened the score in the third minute when Wishart headed past Lowry from a Hubbard cross. Inside 11 minutes the Irish defence had given away a second goal, Hubbard's centre being lobbed into the net by Reilly.

There was an Irish revival after this and just before the interval Gibbons hooked the ball out of goalkeeper Younger's hands and into the net.

Colling flicked the ball past Lowry to put the Scots two up again after eight minutes and following brisk Irish raids the visitors scored again in the 18th minute. Hubbard passed perfectly inside the penalty area to Collins, who had little difficulty in scoring.

Fitzgerald scored the second Irish goal after 20 minutes, but Scotland hung on to their two-goal lead to the end despite a number of spirited Irish attacks.—China Mail Special.

The Victoria Amateur Athletic Association is inviting a group of top European athletes to visit Melbourne for a three days' "Little Olympics" in November.

The athletes include Hungary's Sandor Ihars and Laszlo Tabori, Britain's Brian Hewson and Gordon Pirie, and Czechoslovakia's Emil Zatopek.

EAST GERMAN BEAT NORWAY

Canberra, Sept. 21.

A member of the Australian House of Representatives today suggested that a series of sporting test matches might achieve more in goodwill than the shipment of tractors or exchange of parliamentary delegations in South-east Asia countries.

Replying to Mr. Alexander Downer (Liberal), who made the suggestion, the Acting External Affairs Minister, Sir Philip McBride, said he would like to see cricket and tennis teams visit these countries.

He understood the External Affairs Minister, Mr. Richard Casey, had already made suggestions about this to various sporting bodies. Sir Philip added that there were certain financial aspects to be considered and suitable team members might not always be able to give up the necessary time.—Reuters.

Belgrade's "Teddy Boys" On Rampage In The Streets

By John Earle

Belgrade authorities are concerned at the growth of "street banditism" by gangs of youths who start brawls in public places, rob passers-by in the streets, and molest girls going home at night.

For years, the Yugoslav capital has had its spivs, who run a black market in tickets for the cinema, and who lurk round the main hotels, ready to steal a wireless aerial or windscreen wipers off a foreigner's unattended car.

This year, too, spivs have gone into the black market in the obvious foreigner in the street, asking under their breath if he has any dollars to change at 700 to the dinar, against the official rate of 300.

But it is only recently that Yugoslavia's "teddy boys" (young hooligans) have ganged up for violence on such a wide scale in Belgrade and other main cities.

Reports like this are becoming increasingly frequent in the Yugoslav press.

In Roosevelt Street, one of Belgrade's busiest thoroughfares, four young men in an intoxicated state one afternoon brutally and without any reason attacked a girl secretary, Miss K.V., who was returning home from work.

Law Too Lax

The newspaper added that the law in Yugoslavia is much too lax and should be tightened up.

The maximum punishment for stirring up disorder in a public place, for example, is only 30 days' imprisonment, which is not an effective deterrent, it said.

Moreover, under Yugoslav law, a magistrate cannot send a culprit straight to prison, but has to leave him free while the sentence is confirmed by a higher court. These review courts are so overburdened with work that it is often three or four months before they get round to reviewing a sentence.

By then, the young hooligan had probably changed his address, and joined another gang or "mafia" as they are sometimes called here, from the Sicilian word—china mail special.

Other youths make a practice of provoking fights over girls at dances, or boarding trams in a group and refusing to pay the fare. Except for well-oiled hair and perhaps an American style tie, such youths are not distinguishable by their appearance or dress, especially now, in summertime, when people wear little.

But, according to the official newspaper "Borba," they can be recognised by the most modern slang they use and the insolent and vulgar way in which they address women.

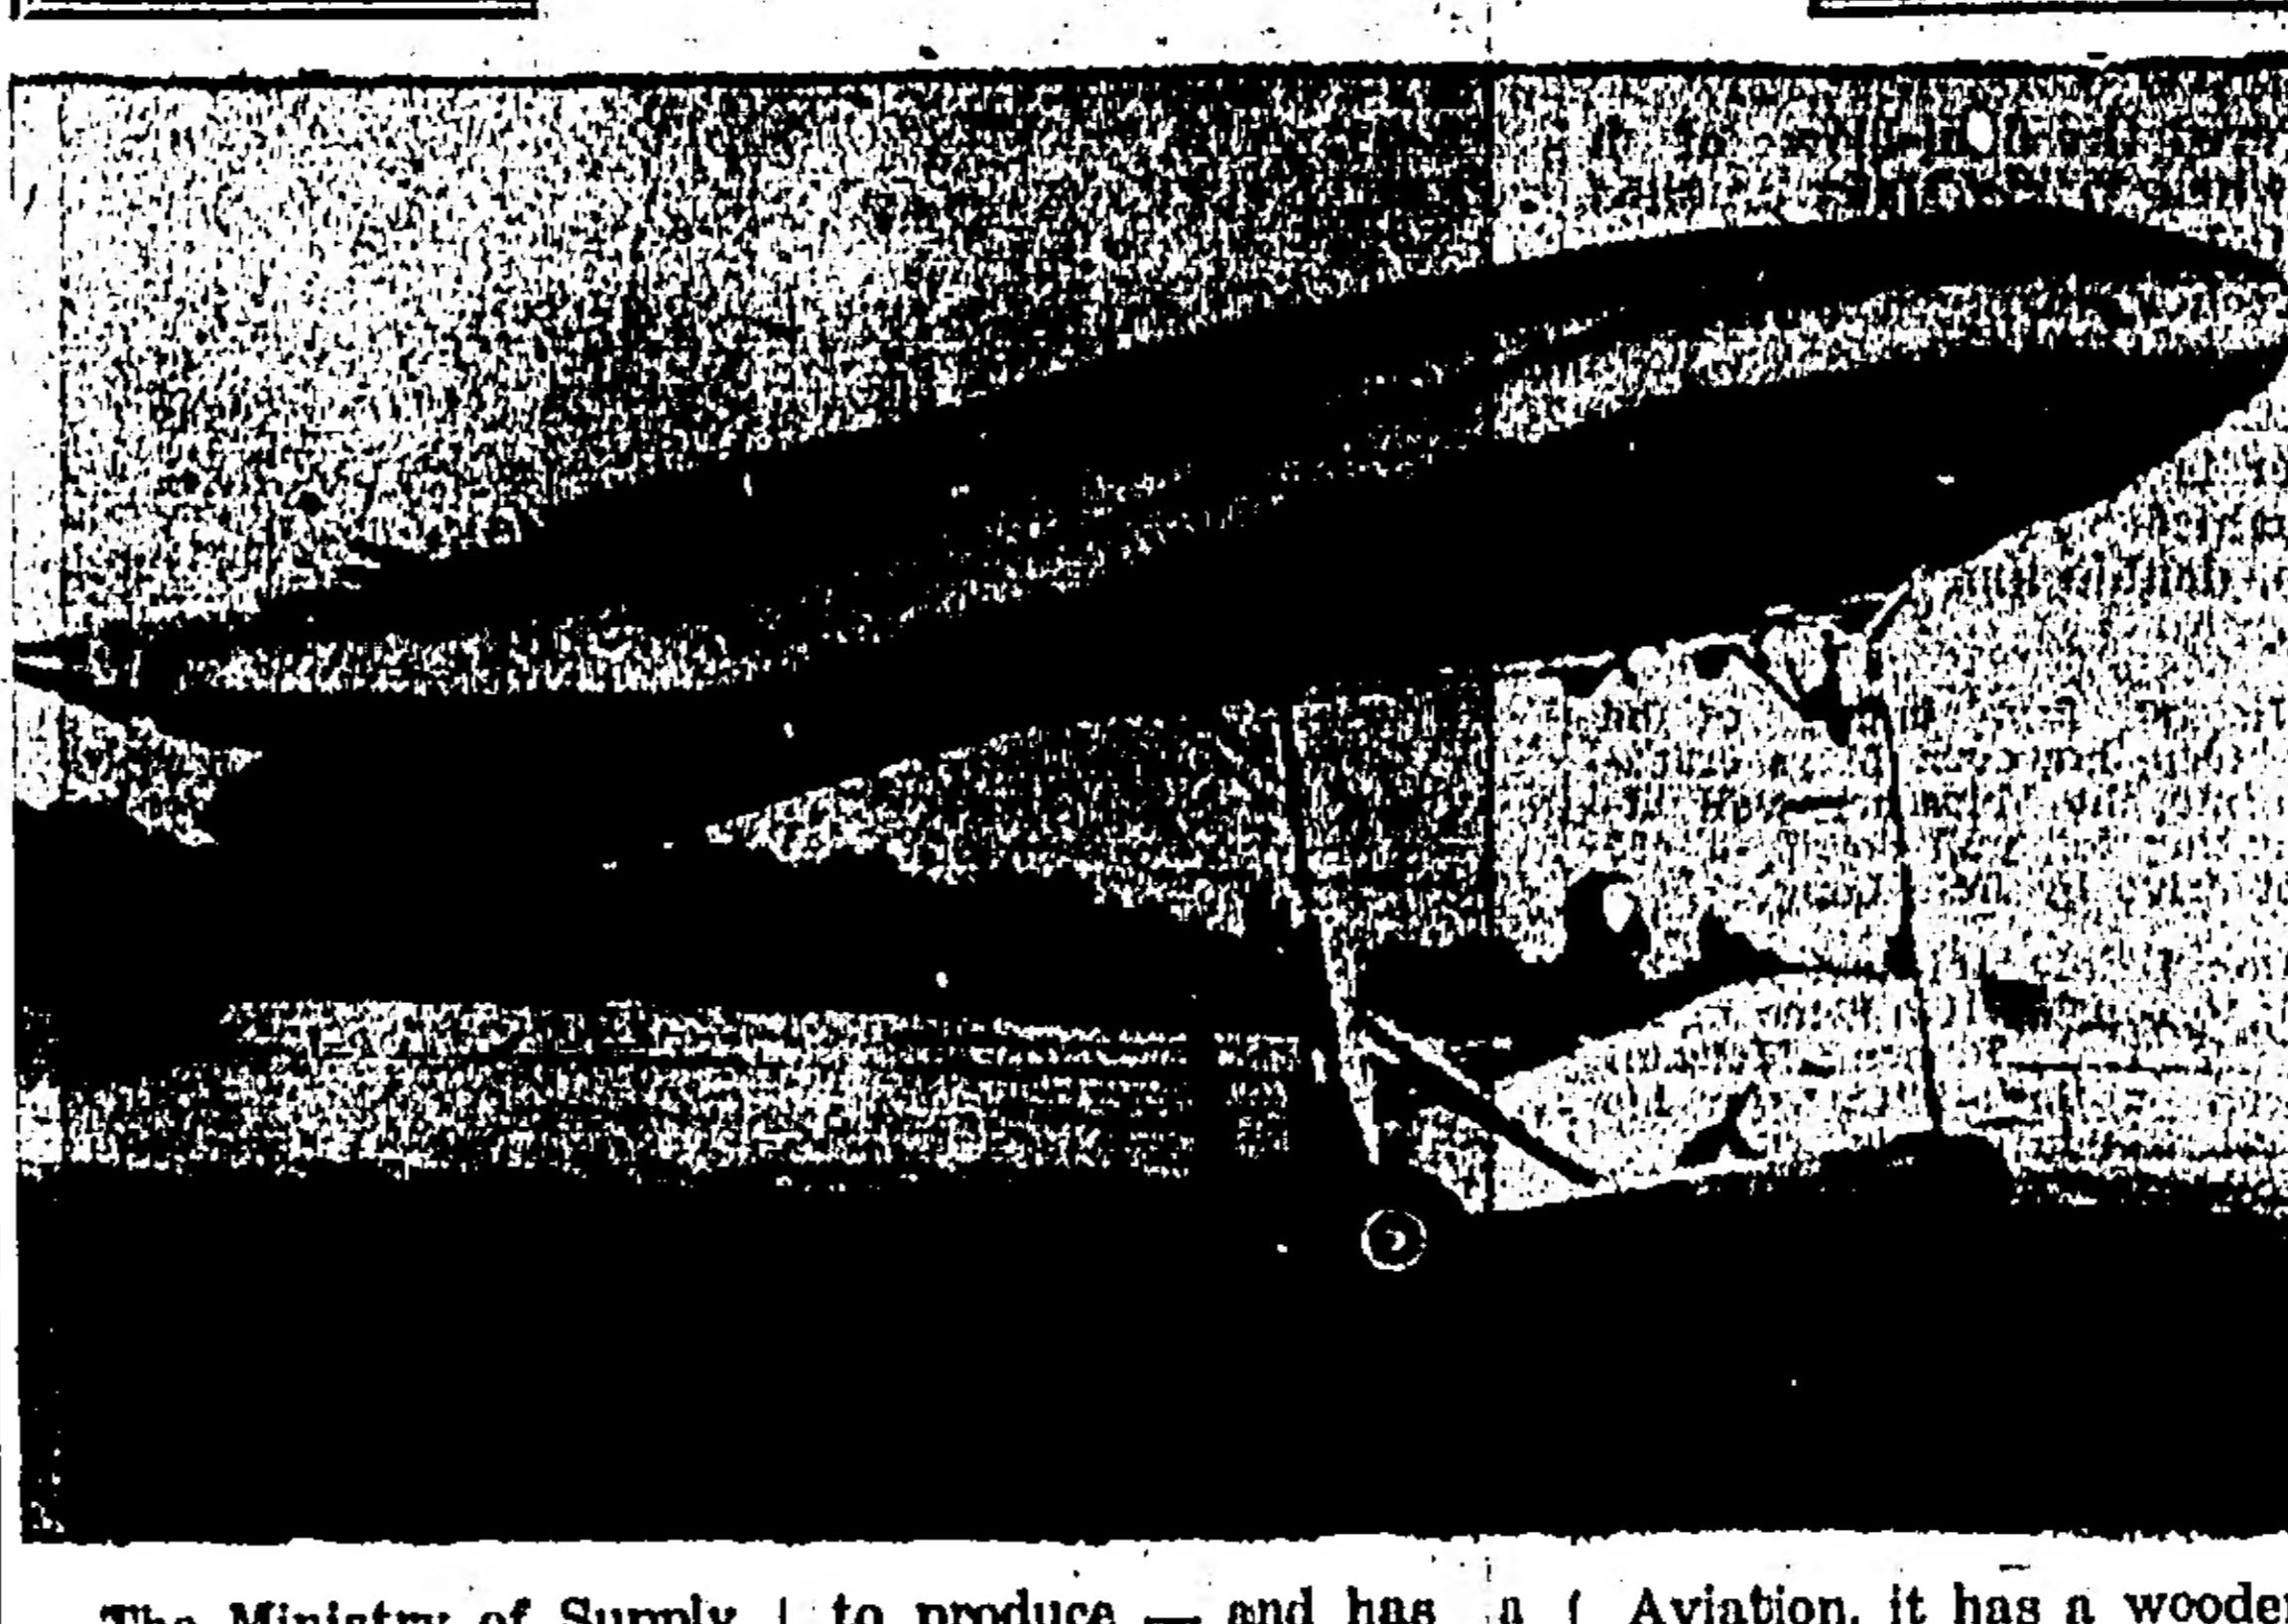

Often they come not from the poorest families, but are young men with education, such as students, technical apprentices, and secondary schoolboys.

Discussing ways of remedying this problem, "Borba" said that the Socialist Alliance, the Government's main political organisation, the trade unions and the Communist youth movement should join together to combat "street banditism" by example and propaganda.

"Borba" foreign observers have noted, did not list either parents or the churches among those who could exert a good influence. It did say, however, that too little had been done so far in Yugoslavia, and that Yugoslavs could learn from

WORLD'S ILLICIT TRAFFIC IN OPIUM WILL BE CRIPPLED BY PERSIA

An Aircraft With Inflated Wing

By VINCENT BIUST

Tehran,

Persia hopes to cripple the world's illicit opium trafficking by passing a bill to ban the growing of the opium poppy in the country.

The Bill should become law this autumn and it would come into effect in the spring of next year.

International narcotics authorities warned Persia recently that the bulk of opium flooding the bazaars of the Orient is Persian. The stream of supplies moving east out of Persia began soon after the Government had signed the pact last October with a consortium of Western oil companies, to run her oil industry.

Nowadays, wherever oil impounded black market opium was Persian. According to an United States representative here, Persian opium also goes to China, where it is processed into codeine or heroin. Then it goes to swell the already large illicit drugs market in the United States.

In addition to curbing the international drug trade, the new Persian law aims at exterminating the opium smoking habit inside the country, where it has gained a hold on millions of people. Civil servants who are addicts will be given three months in which to undergo an opium cure in state clinics, under the new law. Otherwise, they face dismissal.

Peasants, who have cultivated opium for generations, will be helped by State agricultural experts to substitute such crops as grain, cotton or sugar for the poppy.

State Monopoly

Opium cultivation is at present permitted under a Persian State Monopoly. Theoretically, the entire opium yield each year should go to the Government for export. In fact, thousands upon thousands of acres of good arable land throughout Persia are devoted to opium poppy cultivation to satisfy the drug requirements of both Persian and foreign black marketeers.

Doctor Jahanishah Saleh, the Persian Health Minister, said recently that at least 1,600,000 Persians out of a total population of about 17,000,000 are opium smokers.

In a few areas—remote villages in the centre of opium poppy districts—whole families smoke it and give it to children to make them sleep, or tide them over ailments. In the Isfahan district alone, surrounded by large areas of opium production, the number of adult opium takers is widely assessed at 50 per cent of the total.

Profits on illicit opium production are enormous. At Isfahan, Government agents pay fixed price of 800 rials (about £23) a kilogramme (2.2 lbs) of opium legally produced under the State monopoly laws. In the same town, however, one kilogramme of "black" opium sells for 1,000 rials (£5). By the time a kilogramme of smuggled opium has travelled 300 miles south to the port of Khorramshahr, near the oil town of Abadan, the price has leapt up to 8,000 rials (£40).

Experts say that the same kilogramme in the United States would have a market value approaching $600 dollars (nearly £200).

Some Opposition

The bill to prohibit opium production in Persia has met with some opposition in the Persian Senate, where it was given its first reading. Objections were raised chiefly on practical grounds.

Senator A. Farrokh, a large landowner, for example, argued that "If the peasant is deprived of his opium, he will seize a rifle and take to banditry on the highways."

He meant that opium poppies are easily grown and yield good profits for the peasant. If the same amount of land, with the same availability of labour, is turned over to growing grain or cotton or sugar beet, the peasant's profits will be halved.

Persia's exchequer will automatically lose £300,000 dollars a year when the ban on opium cultivation is enforced. This represents the revenue obtained by opium exports to such countries as the Soviet Union and France.

Enforcement of the anti-opium law will be difficult in Persia which is the size of West Germany, the 12 member countries and Australia combined—China Mail.

JOHN CLARKE'S
CASEBOOK

Ronald's
Request

SEEING Ronald in a rush-hour crowd, you might have placed him as a City clerk who had found a level of living that suited him perfectly, and was content to leave others to strive for the big prizes. The kind of man who is good husband, good father, good citizen, and who bears the burdens of the times with resigned good humour.

Such Ronald looks, and such in his time he has been. But he has also, this mild-looking slightly-built, middle-aged man with toothbrush moustache, served sentences in prison for factory-breaking and theft, and has pleaded guilty to charges of fraud.

STAMP MONEY

IT was on a charge of fraud that Ronald was last arrested. One of those pitiful frauds involving the stamping of insurance cards, by which men imperil their freedom for a trifling sum with only the slenderest chances of remaining unconvicted.

The charge to which Ronald pleaded guilty at the Clerkenwell court involved insurance stamps worth £4 4s. 2d. His employers had given him money to pay for the stamps of the staff that came under him; Ronald had spent the money, then pretended the cards they should have been stuck to had been lost in the post.

DOMESTIC TROUBLE

A NEAT but essentially simple bit of detective work brought his crime to light, and for the seventh time in his 44 years Ronald stood in the dock awaiting his punishment.

"Has he given any explanation of why he did this?" the magistrate, Mr Seymour Collins, asked the detective in charge of the case.

"Not really," the detective answered. "He's a married man, but separated from his wife, who has the two children with her. He does seem to have suffered a good deal of domestic trouble....

"His last conviction was when?"

"He came out of prison in 1948 after serving a two-year sentence."

FOR THE FIRST TIME...

"So apart from this, he seems to have settled down well."

"Yes, sir, since leaving prison I think he's tried to go straight," the officer said. "When he's left jobs, I gather it has been due to domestic trouble."

The magistrate sighed and asked Ronald what he had to say.

"I've been in court seven times," Ronald said. "For the first time, I'm going to ask for leniency."

"Won't you tell me why you did this?"

"I was separated from my family and... I'd rather not go into that."

Ronald seemed to retreat within himself for a moment. Then he said: "If you are going to send me to prison, could you postpone sentence for just one day..."

MY BIRTHDAY...

"YOU see," Ronald explained, "I could go to my job and resign if you did that. And then when I came out of prison I could ask them to reemploy me. And there's another reason. My mother happens to be in England. She's 73, and it's my birthday in two days time. I did so want to spend it with her."

The magistrate adjourned the case until later in the day, to give further thought to it.

When Ronald was brought back, the magistrate said: "I'm going to put you on probation for two years, but you must pay £3 costs, and the £4 4s. 2d. compensation."

"Oh, sir, thank you, sir," Ronald said, and a little later he left the court and was lost in the evening rush-hour crowds. A middle-aged man, one among thousands, harassed, hurrying home from the strains and stresses of the day.

Item Two At Geneva Depends On Report From Peking

Washington, Sept. 22.

The United States was awaiting a British report from Peking on prospects for the release of 32 Americans still held by Communist China before tackling broader political issues at the "Big Two" talks at Geneva, informed sources said today. So that the talks at Geneva will not be stalled in the meantime, Mr Alexis Johnson, the United States representative at tomorrow's meeting will be prepared to arrange for future negotiation of economic and political differences between Communist China and the United States.

But active consideration of matters beyond the repatriation problem will not be undertaken by the United States side, it was learned.

Diplomatic quarters said the United States had requested in Peking make the check on progress towards fulfilling the agreement on item one of the Geneva agenda. This agreement was that civilians of both sides should be allowed to return to their homelands if so desired.

LEAVE FOR CHINA

Since September 10, Peking has released nine United States citizens. Yesterday the State Department here announced that the last group of 39 Chinese students who sought repatriation had left for China.

Mr Johnson last week told the Communists at Geneva that the United States would not pass on to item two of the agenda, "practical matters at issue between the two nations," until agreement on item one had been fully implemented.

But informed sources explained today, the United States obviously had further matters it desired to discuss at the Geneva talks. With a view to proceeding as quickly as possible to matters of substance after item one had been satisfactorily disposed of, Mr Johnson tomorrow was expected to proceed with examination of procedural aspects of the continuing exchanges.—Reuter.

"From a national economic viewpoint, it was at least hoped that slight adjustments of certain badly split up agricultural areas would have been possible," Mr Simonen concluded.

SIDE GLANCES By Galbraith

Important Dulles
Speech Today

New York, Sept. 22.

Mr John Foster Dulles, the United States Secretary of State, will make a major speech in the United Nations General Assembly today — the first of the Big Four foreign ministers to do so.

Mr Vyacheslav Molotov, of the Soviet Union, will follow him tomorrow. Britain's Harold Macmillan and France's M. Antoine Pinay will deliver their addresses next week. Neither of these statesmen has yet arrived in New York.

A-Explosions
For Study Of Earthquakes

Sydney, Sept. 21.

The idea to explode atomic bombs in order to study earthquakes is a natural result of the Bikini atom test which gave invaluable information to seismologists, Professor K. E. Bullen said today.

Mr Dulles will be preceded tomorrow by Senator Cyro do Freitas Valle, Brazil's permanent representative.

Mr Dulles will set forth the United States position before next month's foreign ministers' meeting in Geneva.

Among specific problems with which Mr Dulles is expected to deal are disarmament, unification of Germany, development of atoms for peace and review of the United Nations charter.

He will also probably touch on the situation in Southeast Asia.—Reuter.

SECRET MEETING

Paris, Sept. 22.

An "ultra secret" international conference called by Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands opened yesterday in the hotel Alpenhof at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, West Germany, local newspapers and the West German DPA News Agency reported.

The newspapers said that the conference, whose purpose was not known, grouped representatives of a number of West European countries, including Scandinavian countries, as well as representatives of Canada.

The DPA agency said that General Alfred Grueenthal, Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Powers, Europe, Lord Ismay, Secretary-General of the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation, and the United States Deputy Under-Secretary of State, Mr Robert Murphy, were also attending the conference.

The newspapers said that the conference, whose purpose was not known, grouped representatives of a number of West European countries, including Scandinavian countries, as well as representatives of Canada.

Explaining the reason for his choice of the test sites, Professor Bullen pointed out that atomic bombs had been exploded in the United States, Russia and off Australia, hence it was safe to presume these were safe areas for the explosions and would provide widely dispersed information. In addition, he said, the Pacific was chosen because it is the world's most important area for seismologists.
